Do you need help to communicate?

Would something visual help you?

“Total Communication”
Using different ways to make communication successful

Total Communication Now is a community based service which promotes the use of all communication skills. We offer practical advice and support for anyone with a communication disability or difficulty, their family, carers or support staff.

We can help make individualised visual resources for children or adults in order for them to become more independent communicators. We offer a personalised service on an appointment basis as well as providing opportunities for people to attend a range of workshops.

We also welcome interest from local businesses and services within the community. We can provide advice and support in creating easy read materials and more generalised resources within public buildings.

You can visit our website www.totalcommunicationnow.org for more information about resources, video tutorials, total communication e-learning, and details of any training or workshops.
